Growing Influence

JUNETEENTH, commemorating June 19, 1865, when African Americans in Texas learned of their emancipation from slavery, continues to spread across the U.S. as a public holiday.

At least 28 states and the District of Columbia recognize Juneteenth as a holiday. Texas was the first to do so, in 1980. President Joe Biden signed the legislation that made Juneteenth a federal holiday in June 2021.

Don't Forget Obedience

I appreciated your article on dog agility [Top Dogs, March 2024]. My only issue with the list of dog sports was that no mention of basic obedience or competitive obedience was made.

Obedience is the foundation of all the sports mentioned. If a dog does not have the most basic of obedience commands in its repertoire, all the other things become much harder to teach.

=TRAILBLAZER=

BY ANNA MAZUREK

He was the first to visit every state park in a year, and he can tell you where to start your own adventure

WHILE Dale Blasingame was waiting in the car line to enter Hamilton Pool Preserve in July 2014, a ranger walked over with bad news—the popular Hill Country swimming hole was full. Sensing his disappointment, the ranger suggested an alternative, nearby Pedernales Falls State Park.

“Would you like a day pass or an annual pass?” A simple question at the entrance to Pedernales Falls prompted Blasingame to inquire about the number of state parks. The ranger’s reply—95 at the time—inspired Blasingame to respond immediately with “I’m going to buy the annual pass, and I’m going to do them all in one year.”

LEFT Pedernales Falls State Park, where the idea to visit every state park in one year first struck Dale Blasingame. ABOVE Blasingame and Lucy, his hiking companion.

This spontaneous decision would transform his life and spill over into his career.

With his annual pass in hand, Blasingame, an associate professor of digital media and journalism at Texas State University in San Marcos, started ticking state park properties off his list, beginning with those in Central Texas and followed by ones near Dallas and Houston.

While he had never considered himself outdoorsy, a bad breakup in 2013 led him to spend more time in nature, starting with a trip to Santa Fe, New Mexico, with his brother. That inspired a solo road trip to Montana through Yellowstone National Park and the Rocky Mountains.

Halfway through his state park quest, he met a man hiking with his dog at Buescher State Park in Bastrop County.

"I asked him if he liked hiking with the dog, and he was like, 'Oh man, you'll never regret it,'" Blasingame says. "The whole way home, I was just thinking about [how] it would be really great to have a dog to hike with."

Coincidentally, the PetSmart near Blasingame's home was having an adoption event that same day. He brought home a medium-sized black rescue pup he renamed Lucy, who resembles a mix between a black golden retriever and a border collie. Since then, the pair have been inseparable.

Blasingame decided Lucy needed to be the first dog to visit every Texas state park. Since hiking and photography were the main draws for him at the parks, the pair focused on long day hikes, mostly ranging from 11 to 14 miles.

In July 2015, as his annual pass expired, Blasingame visited his 95th state park—becoming the first known person to hit all of them in one year.

“I do have to be totally honest,” he says. “It actually took me 367 days. I was two days late.” The final park, Cedar Hill State Park, near Dallas, had been closed due to flooding, so he had to wait for it to reopen.

Lucy completed her goal in December 2018 after finishing a West Texas route that included a private visit to Balmorhea State Park, where dogs are normally not allowed. When they reached the last park, Blasingame let Lucy off her leash, and she went nuts. “It was like she knew that was a celebration of something,” he says.

His newfound love of the outdoors led Blasingame to create a park-focused storytelling class at Texas State University in 2017 that has evolved to include visits to state and national parks across the U.S. “It’s one thing to get to know students over the course of the semester and a regular class,” Blasingame says, “but when you’re traveling on the road with students, you really do make lifelong friends.”

Now Blasingame has a new goal: “I decided to do every national park property, which is different from saying ‘I’m going to do every national park,’ ” he explains, pointing out that this includes park designations like national historic sites and battlefields.

So far, he’s set foot on 251 of the 429 national park properties.

While Blasingame’s Texas adventures have been filled with awe-inspiring moments, like observing the Milky Way from West Texas, and downright scary ones, like being chased by wild boars at Lake Somerville State Park and Trailway, it’s impossible for him to have only one favorite state park.

Here are some of his top picks by region.

=THE PANHANDLE=

PALO DURO CANYON STATE PARK is special to Blasingame because of its landscape and a family connection. Located near Amarillo, it's home to steep, multicolored mesas and the second-largest canyon in the country, known as the Grand Canyon of Texas. Since his parents lived nearby, he often took them to the park.

"My dad loved to go there and just sit in the car and wait for me and Lucy to finish hiking and being able to share those moments," he says. When Blasingame's parents died in late 2020 and early 2021, friends had a memorial bench built for them overlooking the Lighthouse, the park's iconic rock formation.

Despite roughly 30 visits to nearby Caprock Canyons State Park and Trailway, Blasingame hasn't witnessed large crowds and never tires of the scenic views and hikes through the red rocks.

"It's got the state bison herd, which are always just incredible to watch," he says. The animals have free range over 10,000 of the park's 15,313-acre prairie.

=EAST TEXAS=

"CADDO LAKE is one of my favorite parks out in East Texas," Blasingame says, reminiscing about the swampy environment where he captured some of his favorite nature photographs of Spanish moss-covered trees on a sunrise boat ride. "The great thing about the environment in Texas is we have every element. We've got beaches. We've got mountains. We've got canyons. We've got lakes."

Dense fog on his first trip to Martin Dies, Jr. State Park, located at the confluence of the Neches and Angelina rivers, was also memorable. "It literally [felt] like I was just sitting on a cloud and looking out over all these trees coming up out of the fog."

ABOVE Gorman Falls at Colorado Bend State Park has made Blasingame a repeat visitor. OPPOSITE He loves the sparkling water of the world's largest spring-fed pool at Balmorhea State Park.

=CENTRAL TEXAS=

CLOSER TO HOME, Blasingame's favorite park is Colorado Bend State Park, along the Colorado River. A 70-foot spring-fed waterfall is a highlight of every visit.

"Gorman Falls is one of the most unique spots in all of Texas—a slice of the rainforest about an hour outside of Austin," he says.

=WEST TEXAS=

BLASINGAME'S first glimpse of the Milky Way from West Texas in 2013 was one of the moments that molded him into an outdoorsman.

The region's parks have remained a favorite, including Balmorhea, home to the world's largest spring-fed swimming pool, and the lesser-known Big Bend Ranch State Park, the largest state park in Texas. Big Bend Ranch is adjacent to Big Bend National Park and has only one paved road, River Road (FM 170), along the southern boundary. Even if people can't get into the "very rugged" park interior, Blasingame encourages them to just drive River Road.

"You're driving along the Rio Grande the entire time with huge cliffs behind it," he says. "It feels like a roller coaster, too, based on all the dips and turns the road takes. My single favorite part is the big overlook, which seemingly goes on forever."

THE NUMBER OF STATE PARKS has fluctuated since Blasingame hit his record of 95 and currently stands at 88 (including state parks, historic sites and natural areas). Several more are scheduled to open in the next 12–15 years.

He hopes to get a sneak peek of the newest park, Palo Pinto Mountains State Park, between Abilene and Fort Worth, when it opens this year or next. "I'm sure we'll be some of the first visitors there," Blasingame says. "New parks don't happen every day in Texas, so this is big." ■

Following in Dad's Bootsteps

Three generations of West Texas lineworkers keep the lights on

SOMETIMES CHILDHOOD dreams come true. Other times they veer down an unexpected path.

Three generations of Nixon men in the South Plains ended up on the same path, leaving earlier ambitions in the dust.

Danny Nixon, 66, grew up wanting to be an anesthesiologist. But he fell in love and ran out of money, and he left Texas Tech University after one semester. Soon thereafter he began a career at Lighthouse Electric Cooperative that has lasted nearly 47 years, the first 20-plus spent as a lineworker.

Son Scott, 40, who grew up in Floydada with a dad often away on call, wanted to be a firefighter, but by the time he went off to college, he planned to pursue a career in agriculture. He left Tarleton State University after two years and has been a lineworker at neighboring South Plains Electric Cooperative for 20 years.

Camden, 21, a tall, strapping grandson and son in this family, was sure he'd be a pro baseball player. Did he come close? "Not very," he admits.

Camden remembers how his dad, Scott, missed too many of his childhood games as co-op duties called. "He's not ever at any of my baseball games. What the heck?" Camden says he wondered. "But then my mom talked to me about it, and she was like, he's at work. I was like, well, he's always at work."

Fast-forward to 2024, and Camden is often—if not always—at work, 2½ years into his career as an apprentice lineworker at another neighboring co-op, Lyntegar Electric Cooperative.

Their shared mission of serving co-op members from atop a pole, especially when storms knock out power, is a great source of satisfaction for the patriarch.

"Am I proud? Yes. I'm extremely proud," says Danny, who in 1999 became superintendent at Lighthouse EC and has since been promoted to operations manager.

Camden, the youngster, is proud, too, but he's quick to point out it's not always easy bearing the Nixon name in the West Texas co-op world. He looks first at his dad and then at the man he calls Pops. "A lot of people know him, but everybody knows him," Camden says. "I say my last name and they're like, oh, OK.

"You don't want to mess up," Camden says. "You don't want to do something wrong. I mean, everybody's going to do something wrong, but you don't want it to be bad enough to where they tell my granddad or tell my dad and we're going to have to talk about this at Christmas."

Of course, they might not be together at Christmas. The crews who keep the power on don't get to schedule when storm recovery and other mishaps call them out on jobs. Thus, the Nixons sometimes find it all but impossible to get together for birthdays and holidays—like Father's Day. It's been that way since Danny started his career, and Scott grew up knowing that.

But he also saw the rewards of the job.

"Dad made a good living and provided us with nice things," Scott says. "I got to do a lot of stuff and go on nice vacations and such that most kids didn't get. It makes it worth the hardships to get to provide my wife and kids with the same things.

"It's also kind of a pride thing. I'm proud to be a lineman. There are not very many people in the world who can do my job."

Danny Nixon—with grandson Camden, left, and son Scott—remembers once telling a member who was stunned to see a crew out in a nasty storm, "Ma'am, when it's the worst, that's when we're at our best."

"I'm proud to be a lineman. There are not very many people in the world who can do my job."

As parents tend to do, Danny remembers hoping Scott would find his own way in the world.

"Did I put my wishes and dreams on him? No, I did not," Danny says. "I wished for both of these young men anything but becoming a lineman. And I don't mean that in a bad way, but I'd rather him been a doctor or a lawyer or an animal husbandry guy or a vet.

"Both of these guys. You always want better for your kids and certainly your grandkids."

Scott certainly wanted better for the final home football game in Camden's high school career. Senior night is always a big deal—even more so because the Shallowater Mustangs were closing out an undefeated regular season. But an early winter storm socked West Texas that week in October 2020, coating most everything in ice and whipping power lines with wind gusts up to 50 mph.

South Plains EC crews, including Scott, were working on short rest to restore power, and it seemed impossible that he could get away to walk onto Todd Field with his wife and Camden for the traditional senior tribute.

"We worked 16-hour shifts in this ice storm, and I begged my supervisor to [let me] walk out on the field with him—and then I'd get in that truck and go to work," Scott says. With permission granted, Scott, dressed in his fire-retardant work clothes, briefly joined his family in the stadium.

"My bucket truck was sitting in the parking lot—running, ready to roll," he says. "I didn't get to see him play."

By that age, Camden understood—as co-op families do—that Dad had a responsibility to the community. "I was just glad he was able to be there for a little bit," Camden says. "It meant a lot."

The Nixons agree: Working for a co-op is a calling.

"It does set us apart from Acme brand," Danny says.

"We don't go home till the lights are on," Scott says.

"For the members," Camden says.

Yes, Camden walks the path of Scott and Pops. And as has been the case since September 1977, a Nixon is quite likely to rush down that path when a storm strikes the South Plains. ■

18K GOLD

Kick up your boots in true Texas style with this stunning 2-piece stacking ring that's expertly hand-crafted of solid sterling silver and lavishly plated in gleaming 18K gold. The silhouette of Texas serves as the centerpiece for this dazzling design, and tooled leather-inspired details add an authentic cowgirl look you can be proud to show off. A genuine diamond in a heart-shaped setting is cleverly placed over the spot where Austin, the capital of the state, is located on the map, showing your heart is never far from your roots. The matching chevron-style band with 12 genuine white topaz nestles underneath the ring for a perfect fit, adding a row of sparkle to complete the look. Delicately engraved on the inside of the bands is the message, "You can take the girl out of Texas" and "But not the Texas out of the Girl" when worn together. The versatile 2-in-1 design is equally stylish when the rings are worn together or separately.

We're Prepared for Summer Storms

SUMMER IS HERE, school is out and families are gearing up for a few months of fun and relaxation. Summer brings fun in the sun, but it can also bring the occasional severe storm. In the event of a power outage, you can trust that Medina Electric Cooperative is ready to respond.

The major cause of most power outages is damage to power lines caused by falling trees and branches. Through right-of-way clearing, we work year-round to ensure that power lines in our service territory stand little risk of being damaged by trees, branches or other vegetation.

Despite our best efforts, though, during major storms, damage can occur to transmission stations, substations and power lines. When this happens, our first priority is to safely restore power to as many members as possible in the shortest amount of time.

We start by mobilizing our line crews and other critical staff. Every phone line available is used to take your outage report calls. The big problems are handled first—such as damage to transmission lines, which serve thousands of people—before we can focus on other areas where more localized damage might have occurred.

Medina EC's line crews inspect substations to determine if the problem starts there or if there could be an issue down the line. If the root of the problem is at the substation, power can be restored to hundreds, possibly thousands of members.

Next line crews check the service lines that deliver power into individual neighborhoods and communities. Crews will then repair the damaged lines, restoring power to dozens of people. If you continue to experience an outage, there might be damage to a tap line outside your home or business. Make sure you notify Medina EC so crews can inspect these lines.

We will do our best to avoid power outages, but sometimes Mother Nature has other plans. During a power outage, we will send outage notifications through text and email to members who have verified their contact methods through SmartHub. Learn more about those alerts at MedinaEC.org/Outage-Alerts. You can follow outage updates on our outage map at MedinaEC.org/Outages.

Until next time,
Trey

ARE YOU PREPARED?

The Federal Emergency Management Agency recommends preparing for storms and other disasters with these basic steps:

- Stock your pantry with a three-day supply of nonperishable food, water, and other essentials like medications, diapers and toiletries. Find an emergency supply list at Ready.gov/Kit.
- Organize emergency supplies so they are easily accessible in one location.
- In the event of a prolonged power outage, turn off major appliances, TVs, computers and other sensitive electronics. This will help avert damage from a power surge and will also help prevent overloading the circuits during power restoration.
- If you plan to use a small generator during an outage, make sure it's rated to handle the amount of power you will need, and always review the manufacturer's instructions to operate it safely. Medina EC's requirements for noncommercial emergency and standby generators can be found at MedinaEC.org/Generators.
- Listen to local news or a weather radio for storm and emergency information, and check Medina EC's outage map for power restoration updates.
- After the storm, allow ample room for utility crews to safely perform their jobs, including on your property.

Planning for severe storms or other emergencies can reduce stress and anxiety caused by the weather event and can lessen the impact of the storm.

Do You Have a Medical Need for Electricity?

IF SOMEONE IN YOUR HOME depends on an electrically operated health aid, your account should be listed on Medina EC's Critical Care Registry. To be added, fill out the form at MedinaEC.org/Registry and attach a physician's directive or prescription.

Accounts on this list are notified before planned outages and are flagged as a priority for restoration during unplanned outages. Being on the registry does not guarantee uninterrupted electrical service and will not prevent you from losing power for reasons outside the cooperative's control or from being disconnected for nonpayment.

Individuals who rely on life-support equipment should have an emergency plan, including a place to go in the event of an extended power outage, and should consider obtaining backup equipment, such as a generator and any necessary fuel or a battery backup system.

Medina EC offers GenerLink as an option for members to safely operate a generator, should they own one. You can learn more about the requirements to connect a generator to our system at MedinaEC.org/Generators.

MANAGING YOUR ELECTRIC ACCOUNT gives us access to personal and confidential information, and protecting that information is an integral part of the service we provide. We use your name and Social Security number to verify your identity when you sign up for service and when you call with questions on your account.

Your information is kept in encrypted files behind protected firewalls. Only qualified Medina EC employees who have a need to know can access the information. Our information technology department ensures that firewalls and antivirus applications prevent unauthorized access.

Printed documents containing member information are kept in locked shredding containers and destroyed.

Your information is never sold or given to anyone for the purpose of selling you something. Some information might be provided to third parties acting on behalf of Medina EC and can be disclosed as required by law.

We take the responsibility to protect your personal and confidential information very seriously. Failure of an employee to comply with Medina EC's privacy policy results in punishment and can include termination.

You can also take steps to ensure that your private information stays private and that you don't unknowingly fall victim to a utility scam.

If you get an email that you aren't expecting, don't click on links or reply to it, and don't give out personal information (name, Social Security number, etc.). If the email appears to come from someone you do business with, call them to verify.

Never allow anyone into your home to check electrical wiring, natural gas pipes or appliances unless you have scheduled the appointment or reported a problem. Don't be afraid to ask a utility employee for proper identification. If they are on your property, you have every right to verify that they are who they say they are.

Capital Credits Allocations on Your June Bill: What It Means for You

MEDINA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE MEMBERS WILL SEE their 2023 capital credits allocations printed on their June bill. These totals represent the 2023 margins that are being assigned to you, and you may be wondering exactly what that means.

At the end of each fiscal year, the funds remaining after expenses have been paid—or net margins—are allocated to members' accounts based on the amount of electricity they used in that year. The allocation totals do not represent cash owed to you at this time nor can they be applied to your current bill. You may be asking why you can't have the money that is allocated to your account.

As a member of Medina EC, you reinvest in the cooperative through your capital credits allocations. These funds are used to repay long-term debt, make system improvements, repair storm damage and take care of other capital needs to provide safe, reliable electricity at the lowest possible cost.

At the end of each year, the board of directors determines if any portion of capital credits allocations can be retired based on the financial condition of the cooperative, its bylaws and policy provisions, and lender requirements. The amount retired, if any, can change from year to year depending on the financial needs of the cooperative.

Once capital credits are retired, members receive them as either a credit on their bill or a check. Each retirement is a portion of the total allocation that has been assigned to your account.

"Capital credits are a great example of Cooperative Principle No. 3: Members' Economic Participation," noted CEO Trey Grebe. "All of Medina EC's members contribute equitably to the capital and the growth of the cooperative."

To learn more about capital credits and see a list of unclaimed credits, visit MedinaEC.org/CapitalCredits.

It's important to keep your address up to date, even after you're no longer a member, so we can return any future capital credits retirements to you. In the event of the death of a member, contact us to see if the account is eligible for early retirement. You can update your account by calling 1-866-632-3532 or logging in to your SmartHub account.

Common Culprits of Electrical Fires

OUTDATED WIRING AND OVERLOADED circuits are the most common causes of electrical fires. Check the following areas of your home to ensure your home's electrical safety is up to par.

Electrical outlets: Faulty outlets are a leading cause of home fires. As outlets age, so do the wires behind them that you can't see. Any loose, damaged or warm-to-the-touch outlets should be repaired or replaced.

Electrical wiring: Outdated wiring is another common cause of electrical fires. Frequently tripping breakers, flickering lights and burning smells are clear warning signs. If your home is more than 20 years old, it may not be able to handle today's increased power load. If you suspect your home's wiring is outdated, leave the fix to the pros and contact a qualified electrician.

Overloaded cords and outlets: Extension cords aren't a permanent solution. If your TV and other electronics are plugged into an extension cord, it's time to call an electrician and install additional outlets.

Old appliances: Older appliances are more likely to have loose or damaged wiring, which means they're more likely to catch fire. Check older appliances for damage and determine if it's time to upgrade or replace. Also check to ensure you're using appliance-grade outlets. A qualified electrician can help with installation.

Flammable material near electric heat sources: Placing cloth, like a curtain, or furniture near a heat-producing light or electric heaters can cause the material to heat up and ignite, causing a fire.

Ungrounded plugs: Electronics often have a third prong—a grounding prong—on their plugs to serve as an emergency path in case of a short circuit or fault. Never remove a grounding prong.

LOAD MANAGEMENT STARTS IN JUNE

Medina EC's load management program begins this month and runs through September.

Load management is a program for irrigators to have an opportunity to operate with lower power costs, when enrolled. Those who choose to sign up allow Medina EC to shut off their irrigation equipment during hot summer days, which helps reduce energy demand at key times and helps the co-op save on power costs in the following year.

NEW SMARTHUB FEATURES PROVIDE ENERGY DETAILS

MEDINA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE residential members now have access to new analytics for their energy use. Through this enhancement on SmartHub, members can tap into detailed analytics that illustrate the impact of various appliances on their monthly energy bills. This personalized information allows members to identify which appliances are driving up their energy costs and by how much, offering more opportunities for potential savings.

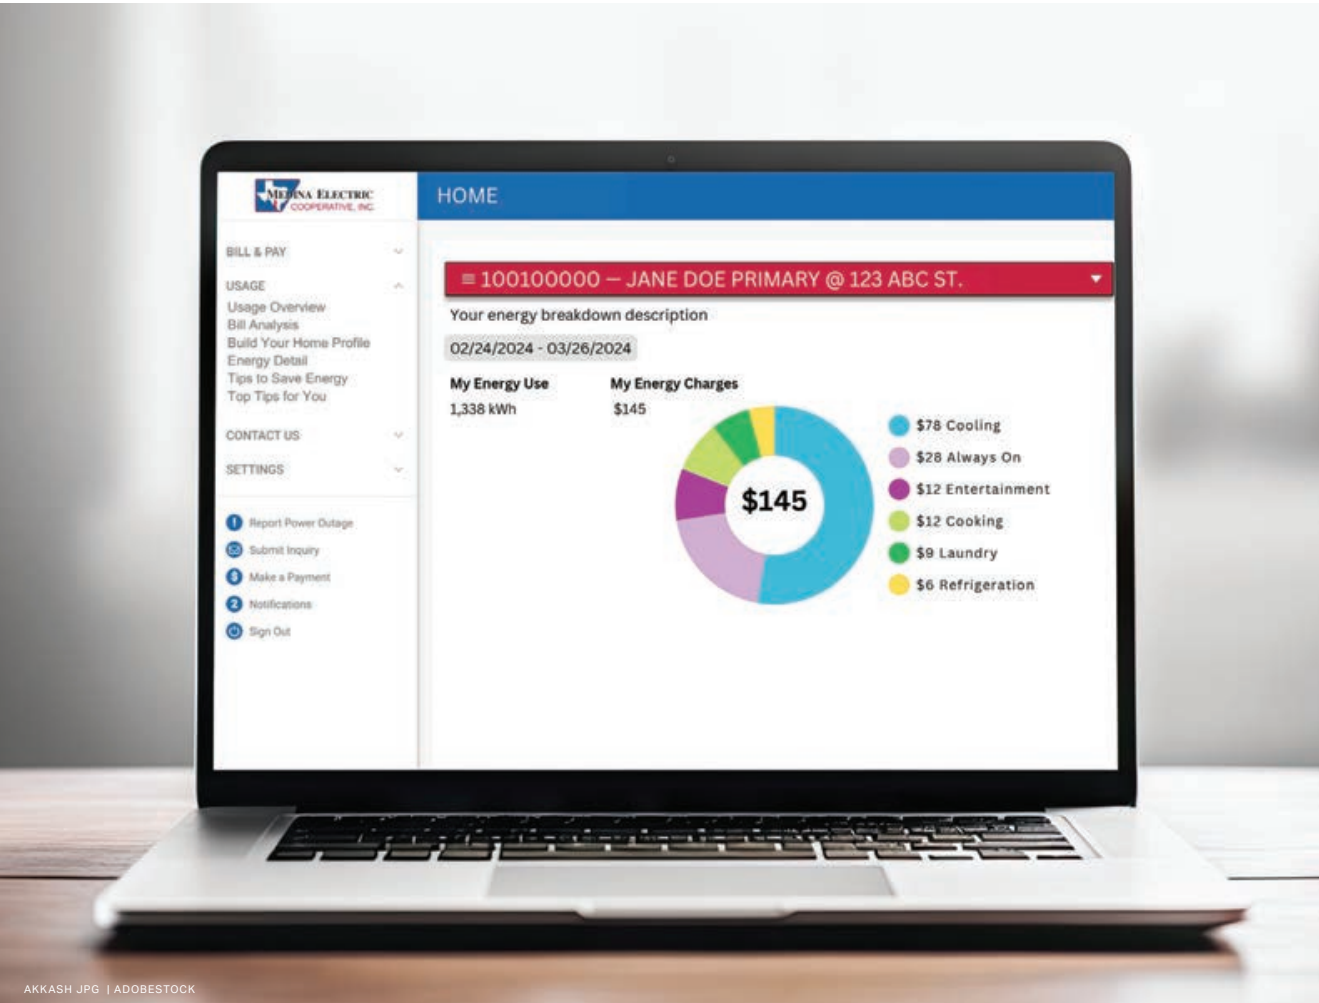

To access these insights, members must have a residential account and be enrolled in SmartHub. Once enrolled, various analytics including energy breakdown, cost analysis, detailed consumption data, projected bills and top energy-saving tips will be available through within SmartHub.

This new feature, known as consumer analytics, is made possible through integration with Bidgely, an industry leader in energy intelligence. Bidgely utilizes meter data disaggregation to identify individual appliance types and their respective contributions to total energy consumption within the home.

The accuracy of these appliance details is derived from analysis of meter data, which captures the unique usage patterns of different appliances. For example, the energy usage patterns of a washing machine differ markedly from those of a refrigerator, enabling precise assessment of their impacts on monthly bills.

To maximize the accuracy of these analytics, members are encouraged to complete the Build Your Home Profile questionnaire for tailored insights that reflect their specific circumstances.

Discover the potential of consumer analytics at MedinaEC.org/ConsumerAnalytics and unlock a new understanding and control over your energy consumption.

Safe Travels, Youth Tour Delegation

THREE STUDENTS FROM THE MEDINA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE service area will join 1,500 others from across the country on the trip of a lifetime June 16-23 as part of the Government-in-Action Youth Tour. In addition to the trip, the contest winners will each receive a $1,000 scholarship toward their educational expenses after they graduate from high school. The students will gather in Austin and then head to Washington, D.C., where they will visit major landmarks, meet their elected officials, and learn about the U.S. and electric cooperative history.

Youth Tour has a long record of educating young people about our government. Then-Sen. Lyndon Baines Johnson inspired the trip when he addressed the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association Annual Meeting in Chicago in 1957. The senator declared, “If one thing goes out of this meeting, it will be sending youngsters to the national capital where they can actually see what the flag stands for and represents.”

Since then, more than 75,000 young Americans have participated in this educational program. Medina EC has sent 45 students on the trip since 2007. More information about Medina EC’s Youth Tour program can be found at MedinaEC.org/YouthTour.

Applicants were asked to write an essay in response to the following prompt: What would life be like without electricity? How does it add value to our lives? Applicants were also asked to provide a list of their extracurricular activities and community involvement and to describe their career goals and why they wanted to attend Youth Tour.

Read a snippet of the 2024 recipients’ essays below. Sign up to receive information about the 2025 Youth Tour trip at MedinaEC.org/YouthTour.

And the Winners Are ...

KENDALL COOPER
CASTROVILLE

“We would not have the conveniences and benefits that are provided to us by having electricity. We can comfortably enjoy our lives in our homes, not having to worry about whether we will be able to survive the winter. Because of electricity, we can live a peaceful and more relaxing existence.”

“The extent to which we rely on electricity is extreme. Our safety and health heavily depend on the use of electricity for everything from hospital devices to alarm systems, contact with authorities and food preservation.”

HOPE SMITH

SANTA ELENA

“Our social relationships would be very different if screens and digital communication weren’t everywhere...With the absence of social media and digital communications, it would teach us to have patience and anticipation, as we would be able to eagerly wait for letters or engage in face-to-face conversations.”

Medina EC Awards $25,000 in Scholarships

TWENTY-FIVE AREA STUDENTS have an extra $1,000 to help with their education expenses next school year.

Medina EC awarded $25,000 in scholarships to area students this May. The scholarship program is an important part of the cooperative's commitment to community and to education. Since it began in 2000, the co-op has awarded more than $702,000 in scholarships to 518 students from our service area.

Learn more about the scholarship program requirements and eligibility at MedinaEC.org/Scholarships. The scholarship applications generally open up and have a deadline in the first quarter of each year. If you have applied in the past and not won, watch for information on next year's scholarship program in January or February 2025.

Released to the Public: Bags of Vintage Buffalo Nickels

One of the most beloved coins in history is a true American Classic: The Buffalo Nickel. Although they have not been issued for over 75 years, GovMint.com is releasing to the public bags of original U.S. government Buffalo Nickels. Now they can be acquired for a limited time only—not as individual collector coins, but by weight—just $49 for a full Quarter-Pound Bag.

100% Valuable Collector Coins—GUARANTEED!

Every bag will be filled with collectible vintage Buffalos from over 75 years ago, GUARANTEED ONE COIN FROM EACH OF THE FOLLOWING SERIES (dates our choice):

- 1920-1929—"Roaring '20s" Buffalo
- 1930-1938—"The Buffalo's Last Decade"
- Mint Marks (P,D, and S)
- ALL Collector Grade Very Good Condition
- FREE Stone Arrowhead with each bag

Every vintage Buffalo Nickel you receive will be a coveted collector coin—GUARANTEED!

Plus, order a gigantic full Pound bag and you'll also receive a vintage Liberty Head Nickel (1883-1912), a valuable collector classic!

Long-Vanished Buffalos Highly Coveted by Collectors

Millions of these vintage Buffalo Nickels have worn out in circulation or been recalled and destroyed by the government. Today, significant quantities can often only be found in private hoards and estate collections. As a result, these coins are becoming more sought-after each day.

Supplies Limited— Order Now!

Supplies of vintage Buffalo Nickels are limited as the availability of these classic American coins continues to shrink each and every year. They make a precious gift for your children, family and friends—a gift that will be appreciated for a lifetime.

NOTICE: Due to recent changes in the demand for vintage U.S. coins, this advertised price may change without notice. Call today to avoid disappointment.

30-Day Money-Back Guarantee

You must be 100% satisfied with your bag of Buffalo Nickels or return it within 30 days of receipt for a prompt refund (less s/h).

TCP Listen as W.F. Strong narrates this story on our website.

A Town Called Toadsuck

Long removed from maps, it was home for a governor as colorful as its name

BY W.F. STRONG • ILLUSTRATION BY TRACI DABERKO

TEXAS HAS PERHAPS more than its share of cities and towns with unusual names. There's Cut and Shoot, Dime Box, Bug Tussle.

But perhaps the strangest was Toadsuck. You won't find it on a map today because it eventually became Collinsville, near the Oklahoma border in western Grayson County. For a relatively brief and shining period, though, Toadsuck was a real Texas town.

How did it get that strange name? I learned the story mostly from the Texas State Historical Association's Handbook of Texas, which is a priceless resource.

Toadsuck got its start as the name of a saloon near the eventual eponymous town. Settlers arrived in the area in the late 1850s, and in 1869, a townsite was surveyed near the saloon, about a half-mile southeast of Collinsville today.

"The town of Toadsuck took the name of the saloon," the handbook says. "It may have been named by John Jones, an early settler and mill owner, after the city of Toad Suck, Arkansas" (which, by the way, does still exist).

"According to legend, the name was originally a reference to men consuming liquor until they swelled up like toads.

However, the word 'suck' was also commonly used in the region as a term for a whirlpool in a river. Hence, the town name may have simply meant 'toad whirlpool.'"

Bill Cannon, who wrote Tales from Toadsuck Texas, tells the story of William "Alfalfa Bill" Henry Davis Murray, who was born in Toadsuck in 1869. Murray would go on to become a colorful governor of Oklahoma in 1930. When he was running for president two years later, he returned to the place of his birth for William Murray Day.

The town of Toadsuck had a statue of Murray ready for dedication, but Alfalfa Bill was so drunk he could barely speak, Cannon wrote. You might say he was "swole up like a toad." The townsfolk were so exasperated and embarrassed that they had a team of horses pull the statue down and break it into pieces. Then they buried it.

Toadsuck faded into history when the Texas and Pacific Railway built its line west of the town in 1880, according to the TSHA. By 1887, most of its businesses and residents had moved to the tracks. The new town was named Collinsville when it was incorporated in the 1890s.

Thus, sadly, Toadsuck was no more. But the beautiful memory of that august name remains. ■

Simply Salads

Keep cool in the kitchen with these tasty garden mixes

BY VIANNEY RODRIGUEZ, FOOD EDITOR

I always find myself craving a Cobb salad when temperatures begin to rise. It's a hearty dinner with abundant toppings that deliver a variety of flavors in every bite. My Texas Cobb Salad is a fun twist on the classic that is so simple to make.

Texas Cobb Salad

SALAD

- 1 head romaine lettuce, coarsely chopped
- 6 hard-boiled eggs, peeled and halved
- 8 slices bacon, fully cooked and cut into bite-size pieces
- 2 avocados, sliced
- 1 can pinto beans (15 ounces), drained and rinsed
- 2 ears corn, roasted and sliced off the cob
- 16 ounces cooked beef fajitas, sliced

DRESSING

- ¼ cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 1 chipotle pepper in adobo sauce, minced, sauce reserved
- 2 teaspoons reserved adobo sauce
- 1 small shallot, thinly sliced
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper

1. SALAD Spread lettuce evenly across a large platter.

2. Arrange eggs in one row across the lettuce. Continue arranging each topping in its own row: bacon, avocado, beans and roasted corn. End by adding fajitas to edge of platter.

3. DRESSING In a small bowl, combine all dressing ingredients and stir to combine. Serve dressing with the salad.

Beautiful, simple and elegant, this salad will leave an impression. Whip up Sullivan's salad for your mother-in-law, a first date or for a gathering. Summer sweet berries stun when paired with creamy goat cheese and a balsamic dressing.

SALAD

- 1 package 50/50 blend baby spinach and spring salad mix (10 ounces)
- 1 carton strawberries (16 ounces), hulled and sliced
- 1 pint blueberries
- 4 ounces goat cheese, crumbled
- 6 slices bacon, fully cooked and broken into pieces
- ½ cup chopped pecans

DRESSING

- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon Dijon mustard

- 1. SALAD In a large bowl, combine all salad ingredients.
- 2. DRESSING In another bowl, whisk together all dressing ingredients.
- 3. Pour dressing over salad. With a serving spoon, gently toss to coat.

Texas Tabbouleh

CINDY BROWN
PEDERNALES EC

Chilled salads are the ultimate summer meal. Prep, tuck away in the fridge and you're set for lunch or dinner. Brown's tabbouleh can be served alone or topped with fish or baked chicken. It's yummy the first day and even better the next.

SALAD

- ½ cup bulgur wheat
- 1½ cups water
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 ears corn, sliced off the cob
- ¾ cup diced carrots
- 1 bunch green onions, diced
- 1 large red bell pepper, stem and seeds removed, diced
- 4 stalks celery, diced
- 1 cucumber, peeled, seeded and diced
- 1 bunch parsley, finely chopped
- 1 can pinto beans (15 ounces), drained and rinsed

DRESSING

- Juice of 2 lemons or limes
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced

1. SALAD Place bulgur wheat in a heatproof bowl. Bring water to a boil over medium-high heat. Carefully pour boiling water over bulgur wheat. Let stand for 45 minutes, then drain well.

2. Heat olive oil in a medium skillet over high heat. Sauté corn and carrots until tender, about 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat.
3. In a large bowl, combine bulgur wheat, corn, carrots, green onions, bell pepper, celery, cucumber, parsley and beans. Stir to combine.
4. DRESSING In a separate bowl, whisk together all dressing ingredients.
5. Pour dressing over salad, stir to combine.
6. Refrigerate 24 hours. Serve chilled.

COURTESY CHET GARNER

We Brake for Steak

There's no need for menus at the Leona General Store

BY CHET GARNER

IN MY LINE OF WORK, it's normal to pass through a small town with ailing buildings and few visible signs of life. It isn't normal for one of those old wooden storefronts to have a line 150 Texans long, stretching clear into the next parking lot. I pulled over to find out what was happening at the Leona General Store, and after someone told me it was steak night, I had no choice but to get in line.

This special event on Friday and Saturday nights draws hordes from hundreds of miles to this vintage storefront on Texas 75 in Leona, less than a mile off Interstate 45, midway between Dallas and Houston. When the doors opened, the small store swallowed the entire line as folks spread across the creaking wooden floor. The walls are covered with knickknacks and farming equipment, just as you'd expect inside a 100-year-old general store.

Part of the magic of "the best little steakhouse in Texas" is its simplicity. There's no written menu since they're known for one entrée: rib-eye steaks. Each one is hand cut and cooked over hot coals. Everyone gets the same sides and salad bar.

The only choice customers make is how big they want their steak. The smallest is 10 ounces, and the largest ever eaten was more than 90 ounces. I decided to let that record stand and ordered a 12-ounce steak, which was at least 16 ounces. They admittedly don't weigh anything in the back, which works to the customer's benefit.

Owners Jerry and Cynthia House made laps through the building, making sure everyone was happy and well-fed. The steak was certainly one of the best I've ever eaten, but it's the small-town hospitality that will keep me and hundreds of my closest friends coming back. ■

Renewal in Blue

Bucolic summers in the Piney Woods leave an indelible mark

BY CLAUDIA SULLIVAN
ILLUSTRATION BY JAMES O'BRIEN

EVERY SUMMER of my youth, I eagerly packed my bags, left the big city behind and traveled to the Piney Woods to live the life of a farm girl with my grandparents.

Those East Texas summer days were idyllic. Mornings began with the smell of bacon or ham cooking on the stove and skillet-fried toast with homemade apple or plum jelly. Lunch was always accompanied with rice, yellow and thick, made rich with butter and milk. The meal wasn't complete without blackberry cobbler made from berries we picked ourselves, battling thorns and yellow jackets while gathering the tart, wild fruit.

Promptly at 12:30 p.m., Mema settled in to shell peas and watch her "stories" on TV while Pa took his afternoon nap. I spent those sultry afternoons outside whispering secrets to Boy, the old bird dog, and to Lady Bird, the orphaned calf we raised on a bottle, or rocking in the tractor tire swing hung under the huge pecan tree.

Mema, Pa and I spent nights in the screened-in sleeping porch, cool and bathed in moonlight. Lying in my bed, I heard the whine of diesel trucks on the distant highway and the whirring of the summer breeze through the woven, mesh screen. The night air smelled of rose blossoms and honeysuckle.

It was the scent of summer.

The memories of those summer days have not faded. Mema and Pa are gone now and so is the old farmhouse. Some years ago, on a cold night not long after midnight, the house went up in flames. Some said it was itinerants carelessly discarding a cigarette. Others said it was lightning, though no one recalls a storm that night.

I believe the old house caught ablaze all by itself. The warmth of all those memories heated to spontaneous combustion. The house saved up all those memories until one night there was nothing but glowing embers—except for what lived on in the minds and hearts of those who were sheltered and loved there.

Nothing stands now except two large pecan trees and the old tractor tire swing.

But each spring something wondrous and beautiful happens. In the place where my grandparents' house once stood, a dense blanket of bluebonnets blooms.

Like the color of the sky or the gingham dresses little girls used to wear, the wave of flowers defines the layout of the house. No one recalls ever seeing bluebonnets in that part of town.

Maybe the heat of the fire raised dormant seeds to life. Or perhaps that little patch of earth needed something cheery and pretty to grace its sudden emptiness.

Whatever the reason, I know Mema and Pa would be pleased. ■
